FROM YE OLE EDITOR

Many thanks for all of your compliments regarding the last newsletter. Many of the phone calls and letters I received were happy to see the inclusion of "cochin" pictures. I, too, think this adds a lot to the publication. Unfortunately, each picture does increase the cost of the newsletter. The current annual dues of only $10 barely covers the cost of printing and mailing the three newsletters. Those that are mailed outside of the country of course cost even more. I will continue to do my best to put out the best publication possible within the limits of our treasury. I would welcome any comments you might have to make OUR NEWSLETTER even better!

One phone call I received in February was from Jim Kern. A very knowledgeable ...veteran breeder/showman. We talked for almost an hour relative to current judging inconsistencies and the ABA standard. Jim's overriding thoughts were twofold. First he was concerned about the great difference seen amongst cochins at any given show. Even among the winners, differences in size, type and breed characteristics is evident. He noted that one does not see the great difference in such established breeds as Old English. His second important point was that judges will only get the message relative to judging consistency by bringing it up with an article in Poultry Press. I would agree with this assessment, however, any article must be written tactfully. The last thing we want to do is alienate the judges. I am glad that the comments put forth in the last newsletter have generated some thought. Jim commented that we must as in any relationship communicate our thoughts, rather than complain behind closed doors. So .... are we going to do anything?? that is always the question. I welcome further discussion and will include in future newsletters any responsible article I can.

It has been brought to my attention that some of you have received newsletters from the post office in less than perfect condition. If the number is great enough, then maybe we will have to mail all in envelopes (this is already required for those outside of the USA). Let me know.

I had the →

from December 1957 Poultry Press....submitted as another viewpoint re: cochin bantam size

Should We Weigh Them?

by C.H. McClave (New London, Ohio)

Bantam weight and size has been under discussion for many years and, in general, I think the standard weights are very near, in most cases, to the ideal. However, I do think that the Cochins and the Brahas could be raised in standard weight somewhat, to benefit of the breeds involved. In the smaller birds, it is impossible to get the feather length and width that results in some near perfect birds. The black Cochin female at Defiance in 1955 comes to mind. I have never seen her equal in type and feathering, but she would have been washed out if put on the scales.

There are two sides to the size picture. The other side is underweight. This is particularly true in Seabrights. Many judges and exhibitors want them smaller the better, which the standard does not call for. Many birds have been winning that were so far underweight that they should have been disqualified as being inferior for breeding purposes. The standard gives the judge the liberty of determining whether the bird is so weak and inferior in stamina as to make it a poor or impossible breeding prospect. These same birds, when examined carefully, would have been found to have deformed leg and thigh bones and in many cases, more or less crooked backs. In fact, we showed one of that kind once, more or less as a stunt, to see if the judge and other exhibitors would notice that the bird had a crooked back and crooked thigh bones. Well, the bird in question was Champion bantam of the Show and only one person, another exhibitor, caught on. Such small and deformed birds are almost always fall hatched fugitives from chicken heaven. They are worthless as breeders and are worthless show birds, if the judge is up to his business.

Some Seabright exhibitors may recall that for a couple of years we showed our Seabrights and after the judging was finished, put up coop cards with a sample feather from hackle, back, and breast of each bird attached to the card.

Also the weight of the bird was marked on the card. No Seabright that was shown was over standard weight and in most cases the weight was from 1 to 4 oz. under standard. There were a few cases where the judges noted on the cards that the birds were too large.

We would like to see a good bantam show someplace, sometime, weight every bird and mark the actual weight on the coop tags where everyone could see. I do not think it is up to the judge to act as a weighing machine, but that the exhibitor should be sport enough to show birds as near standard as possible. If this did not work out, then I think the show stewards weigh the birds in and on the coop cards stamp, "overweight" or "underweight" if the discrepancy was say 4 oz. over or under. There would be cries of anguish in all probability, by a few, but it would get results in mighty short order. Personally, I think it is less of a sin to have a bird an oz or two overweight than underweight. Early hatched specimens that make the best breeders are always a little larger than spring or summer hatched from the same matings.

Messages from our President and Vice President are noticeably absent from this newsletter.... Hopefully, both Pat and Tim will be able to make contributions "next time". Our thoughts are with both of you! (See insert) last two newsletters tabbed by the printer. They only charged a couple of cents per copy. But it appears that maybe that is the problem. They didn't seem to stick too well. Perhaps I will hand tape them with tape next time and see if this works better. So what's another hour of self imposed slavery!! Let me know if there is still a problem with the condition of delivery.

Every once in awhile, I get a request to put an article or picture on a particular page. Please keep in mind that I usually have started the next newsletter before I have even mailed the last one. If I waited until just before mailing date...to start typing.... HHEELLPP!. Point: If you would like something included... send it to me as soon as you can. If you wait until just before printing...then it will have to be squeezed in where possible. It would be appreciated.

I have only received a few "master points" name clarifications. Please be reminded that points will be awarded to EXHIBITORS as their names appeared in the last newsletter. So don't forget to consistently enter your birds with the same exhibitor name. Much appreciated! Please don't interpret this request as an attempt to keep points from members just because they didn't dot their 'i'. This is the furthest thing from the truth. It is nothing more than a clarification.

It has been brought to my attention by a couple of members... that even when they enter their names correctly on an entry sheet, the show secretary sometimes changes the name. I will keep this in mind.

If we all work towards a common goal... everyone will benefit.

Last year I joined the "Cochin" club of Australia. They, too, have a newsletter. Elsewhere in this copy you will find information regarding their club. They published an excellent book on cochins, which should serve as a model for us. I sent for a dozen copies last year to have

IT HAPPENED TO ME!!

A new column! Good ole Dad (Norman Rau) suggested we start a new column to include both "happy" and "sad" cochin happenings... things that happen to each of us. Perhaps if we realize that each of us shares some of the same luck both good and bad, then maybe it will be easier to feel good about our hobby. I invite all of you to send (perhaps on a postcard) items of interest that could be included. Names will not be included unless requested on submission. Let's make it an interesting and fun column. I will let a few members know about this column so that we will have something to print this issue.

It happened to me...

This year I decided to use a ten gallon aquarium to house my day old chicks. I thought it was a great idea. Tighter and therefore warmer than a cardboard box, I proceeded with two hatches of about a dozen chicks each. What a great idea! I used a smaller watt light bulb, saved electricity...what could be better. My euphoria lasted until the third hatch. This third hatch produced 22 chicks, one was a chick from a hen that lays few eggs. I use ice cube trays for water for the first week, so that they will not DROWN. Because the 22 chicks used more water than usual, I decided to switch to a one gallon plastic waterer...I even remembered to use a narrow no-drown screw on base. Pretty smart Hah! The next day, after work it was time to inspect everyone, collect eggs, do AI, feed and water. WELL, guess what happened... somehow the waterer malfunctioned and all the water leaked out and since I had forgotten to give my chicks their first swimming lesson. Well...you get the point. If only I had stayed with the old box, the water would have drained out and all would have been saved. Sometimes ideas that seem so great are not!

It happened to me...

The other day I was carrying some eggs back from the "hen house" and a car pulled up along side the road. Both a man and woman got out . (Apparently to ask directions)They were about 25 years old. With a disgusted tone and her nose turned up the young wife asked "what are you going to do with those"? I hesitated , not knowing how to answer. Her husband realizing my problem answered for me "Dear , where do you think th eggs come from that you buy in the store??"

on hand for any member who was interested. I still have a couple left. Let me know if anyone is interested. They also send out a club newsletter. It is very interesting to note that their ("cochin") Pekin type is very different from ours.... check it out!
